ELEGANT ENGRAVINUS.—As we were passing Hale's Banking House, yesterday, we noticed two elegant specimen proof sheets from the Bank Note Engraving establishments of Rawdon, Wright Hatch & Edson. The large sheets were coversent of SPY GLASSES, MI with impressions from the engravings which are in use on bank notes, and formed a beautiful picture gallery, each picture landscape, die und portrait, being a study in itself. It is truly wonderful to see the delicacy and precision with which these minute prints are engraved. No false mark, not the slightest scratch, the faintest blur or the least omission is to be found on either of these sheets comprising perhaps three or four hundred proofs What would the artist who furnished the cut for Our sisgant Stock of the heading of the "Boston News Letter," or the "Connecticut Mercury," where the flying figure o Mercury looked like an airtight store with two long legs and a distorted urn, and whose wings were as graceful as the sideboards to a wheelbarrow, think VELVETS. of these impressions? Or, coming down to later periods, how would the hideous carricatures in old spelling books, geographies and Sunday School books, compare with these. Well do we remember when we used to gaze on the pictures of "The good boy," "The wise child" and "Johnny the boy who minded his mother," with the earnest hope that we never should be so good as to look as those pictures did. But that time has passed, and the skill of the engraver is now able to produce the most wonderful fidelity to nature. For this we can rejoice and say "it is good."

Marshell, Mich., Feb. 11th, 1851.

Dz. Mann & Co.—I have sold a large amount of your AGUE BALSAM in this vicinity, and from my personal knowledge of it, I believe it the best remedy for Chifa, Fever and Arne that has ever been sold in our State.
